Credit/Debit Card Notice:

On the week of February 5th, primarily February 7th, pump #1 was compromised by somebody attaching data skimmers on top of the credit card scanners. On another date, unknown now, pump #3 was compromised as well. To the best of our knowledge, the card information was gathered throughout the day, and the skimmers were removed that evening. The information was used to develop new cards which were used over the week-end primarily at Walmart and ShopKo, but other charges have been used at smaller retailers as well. If you have the "chip" on your debit/credit card your card was not compromised. If you paid in the store, your card was not compromised.

Please review your account information if you used your debit/credit card on these two pumps around Tuesday February 7th. Pump #1 is the pump furthest to the east (woods) and pump #3 is middle island facing east as well. Please report any information to your bank, the Stockbridge-Munsee Police Department or the Shawano County Police Department.

We also understand that other gas stations in Shawano and Wittenberg were skimmed, so please be aware of other gas stations you may frequent. The pumps were inspected Saturday evening, and there was not any internal tampering, but there were traces of glue on the two pumps. Our manager is now required to walk around the pumps and pull on the credit card scanners to check for scanners, we would request for our customers to do the same

The following departments have been working on this case including our Surveillance, Stockbridge-Munsee Police Department, Shawano County Police as well as US Oil.

Buck Martin a Long-Time Advocate for Native American Issues

Author: Doug Moe, Madison Magazine
Published On: Jul 17 2016 01:05:42 PM CDT

Buck Martin had a long career working on Native American issues in Wisconsin, but that doesn't mean he spent decades doing just one thing. On the contrary, Martin—his real first name is Waldo—was at various times an advocate, an advisor, a coordinator and a lobbyist.

Alliances were not always easily defined. When Martin, a member of the Stockbridge-Munsee Band of Mohicans, was working as a policy advisor for Wisconsin Gov. Tommy Thompson in the late 1980s, a controversy involving treaty rights and spearfishing was threatening to boil over.

Tribal leaders were invited to the Executive Residence in Maple Bluff. An Ojibwe tribal chairman confronted Martin on the steps of the governor's mansion. "So, you've gone over to the dark side." "Look," Martin said. "When Tommy Thompson starts talking about treaty rights, or any Indian issue whatsoever, do you want me in that room or not?" "I want you in the room," the chairman said.

Dedication held for the Eunice Stick Gathering Place

By Susan Savetwith
Mohican News Reporter

The Stockbridge-Munsee Band of Mohican Indians recently hosted a grand opening ceremony for its new 7,200-square-foot, $1.7 million Elder Center which is located right next to the old center. Members and dignitaries from throughout the community and Shawano County gathered for the grand opening and dedication of the newly built center dedicated as the "Eunice Stick Gathering Place."

The new center will offer more than 120 tribal elders daily meal services, transportation services, activities and recreational opportunities, chore services including; snow removal, lawn maintenance, and window washing. Key features of the building include a lounge with a fireplace, a commercial grade kitchen, a 120-seat dining room and professional meeting areas with video conferencing capabilities.

According to Tribal President, Shannon Holsey, building a new home for the elderly has been a goal of Tribal Council for many years. "I am excited to see it come to fruition," President Holsey said. "Our nation will succeed or fail to the degree that all of us—citizens and business alike—are active participants in building strong, sustainable and enriching communities. Today is a testament

Reclaiming Native Truth: $100,000 to help change misperceptions of Native Americans (Longmont, CO)

“There are so many needs across Indian Country, and the SMSC’s financial support will go a long way toward improving the lives of many people, especially children and future generations,” said SMSC Chairman Charles R. Vig.

The SMSC has donated approximately $350 million to organizations and causes in the past 25 years. The SMSC announced the new multi-million package of donations less than one month after making a $200,000 gift to fund living allowances for AmeriCorps VISTA volunteers working to improve Native nutrition, as part of the SMSC’s $5 million Seeds of Native Health campaign. It was the first time in VISTA’s history in which a tribe provided funding to deploy VISTA members nationally. In an editorial lauding Seeds of Native Health, the Star Tribune – Minnesota’s largest news outlet – called the tribe a “philanthropic force.”

“Launching an unprecedented national project like Reclaiming Native Truth requires farsighted dedication from planners and funders. The SMSC’s donation shows a long-term commitment to improving the lives of Native Americans,” said Michael Roberts, co-director of Reclaiming Native Truth and president and CEO of First Nations Development Institute. Reclaiming Native Truth is co-directed by Crystal Echo Hawk, president and CEO of Echo Hawk Consulting.

Having Trouble Paying Your Heating Bill? LIHEAP Could Help

By Nathaniel Sillin
The chill of winter can be offset with the pleasure of curling up inside a warm home. Turning on the heat and settling into your favorite chair to open a new book or watch a movie feels even better when snow falls or rain patters against the windows. Unfortunately, some families have to choose between paying high winter utility bills and buying groceries or gas for their cars. The necessity of food and transportation often wins. Fortunately, there are assistance programs. One such program, the federal Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), helps low-income households with heating or cooling costs, during an energy-related crisis (such as a shutoff notice from your utility) and with weatherization improvements. If you, a parent or a friend are struggling to make ends meet this winter, LIHEAP and similar programs might be able to help keep your home warm.

Apply as soon as you can if you think you’ll need assistance. The federal government provides the funding for LIHEAP, but the programs are run at the state level. The money gets distributed on a first-come-first-served basis and states give priority to households with children, elderly or disabled members. Often the largest benefits are awarded to the homes with the most need. States open their winter applications at different times, and you should apply for LIHEAP right away if you think you’ll have trouble paying for heating.
LIHEAP won’t cover your entire utility bill, but it can help keep Heat continued on page Four:

household receive benefits. How to apply for LIHEAP. Often you'll apply for LIHEAP at a Community Action Agency (CAA), local non-profit organizations that help administer federal, state and local grant programs. Some states let you complete the application online, otherwise you may need to mail, fax or hand in an application. The Office of Community Service's website has contact information for each state and territory, including a link to a website where you'll find state-specific eligibility guidelines and program information. As part of the application process, you may need to share identifying and financial information, including:

- Recent utility bills.
- Recent pay stubs, or a profit-and-loss statement if you're self-employed.
- Documentation for other income, such as Social Security benefits.
- A lease or property tax bill as proof of your address.

- Your Social Security number.
- A list of people living in your home, their relation to you, dates of birth and incomes.
- A copy of a utility termination notice, if you received one.
- Your energy provider's information.

If you're having trouble with your state's website, or want to help someone who isn't computer savvy, you can call the LIHEAP Clearinghouse's National Energy Assistance Referral (NEAR) at 1-866-674-6327 (TTY: 1-866-367-6228).

Bottom line: When the temperature drops, heating costs can quickly rise. You shouldn't have to suffer, and LIHEAP could help provide much-needed financial aid. You can look for additional assistance programs using the Benefits.gov search tool. Also look into state-based programs and payment plans or assistance from your local utility.

President Holsey had high praise for everyone involved in the building from inception to completion.

to that commitment. It came with much planning, saving, vision and patience," President Holsey added. She said the center is a place for gathering for our entire community, to break bread and have fellowship, to share old memories and create new ones, to celebrate and share our elder's wisdom and traditions, and a place of diversity and inclusion where all feel welcome. President Holsey said Margert Mead so wisely stated, "Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful committed citizens can change the world. Indeed, it is the only thing that ever has. Today we celebrate that commitment."

"It's great to see the Stockbridge-Munsee providing further investment into their elderly population through this new center," said Sen. Robert Cowles. "The vital services provided, including home-delivered meals, transportation and recreational activities, will only be enhanced through this new facility, and will serve as an asset to the whole community."

"The Stockbridge-Munsee's continued partnership and investment in the community with this new center is an important addition and resource for many in the area," said Rep. Gary Tauchen. "I applaud the Stockbridge-Munsee Band of Mohican Indians in their efforts."

The Stockbridge-Munsee tribe used local design-build general contractor, Bayland Buildings, to complete the Elder Care Center project, which began in summer 2016.

Lenore Shepard gave the dedication speech, she said, "Let's get it done!", those were the words of Eunice Stick when there was a round-table discussion of when to build a new Elder Center and eating facility. In fact, those were the words from Eunice for most of everything she did during her life.

Eunice was born August 31, 1919 and passed away in July 2016 at the age of 96, just short of her 97th birthday. Eunice was in awe of how fast things had changed in her lifetime, going from walking everywhere, horse and buggies, the first cars, to her first airplane ride and then seeing a cell phone. She couldn't believe that you could carry your phone around with you or the way computers operated.

Education and cooking were her passion. In "getting it done" here are a few of her dreams that Eunice accomplished;

1. As an adult, she went to night school in Milwaukee to get her high school diploma.
2. Although she never had children of her own, she had the experience of helping families in Neopit and Milwaukee by taking care of their children, cooking, and cleaning. Later in life, Eunice had so very very many children that called her "Gramma Eunice" and loved her so very much just as she loved them
3. She loved to cook and bake so she bought a delicatessen with her first husband, who would take the orders and payments while she did all the cooking of salads, hot dishes, breads and buns and made various types of take out sandwiches. Eunice's dream was to run a bigger restaurant, but do to the lack of funds during those times, she was unable to do a large purchase like that.

Artists rendition of the project

4. Eunice would get a ride or take a bus from Milwaukee and come to Red Springs to visit friends and relatives. She was amazed that her good friend Lois Welch could drive a car. Eunice went back to Milwaukee, took a driving class and got her license and her own car to travel with.
5. Eunice moved home to the reservation and was employed by the tribe to cook for the elders for our community in the old elderly center next door. She always said, "The best way to get it done and do it fast was to set up an assembly line for cooking, it had to be in the right order."
6. Eunice went back to school in the early 1980's at the University of Stevens Point as a non-traditional student, through a special Native American weekend classes program. She graduated with an Associate's Degree in Liberal Arts in 1989. She loved the experience.
7. Eunice loved to teach special friends how to bake or make certain dishes. Her favorite was baking French bread and giving it away.

8. She was employed for a number of years at the Tribal Library Museum where she applied and shared her knowledge of our history.

Shepard went on to say, "Although we could go on and on about all the wonderful things Eunice did for the community, for her church, or during her employment or retirement time; we truly want to remember her today and honor her with naming the new; "Stockbridge-Munsee Community Eunice Stick's Place of Gathering."

Shepard ended by saying, "We want to thank the Stockbridge-Munsee Tribal Council, the Aging and Disability Resource Center, and the HUD Indian Community Development Block Grant for providing funding for our new center. We also want to thank the Elderly Steering Committee and each and every person that shared experience and gave information on the planning and proper supplies and materials. We cannot thank you enough. And even though Eunice cannot be present with us today, we know that she is here in spirit, and saying; "You finally got it done and it is beautiful."

Things usually went well enough with Martin in the room that when he retired this past spring—he turns 70 Aug. 25—his tribe held a celebration for him at the Stockbridge-Munsee-operated North Star Mohican Casino Resort. Usually, he is quicker with a quip than a tear. Martin is known for his humor, and being able to use a joke to make a point. After all, this is a man who, when his daughter got married last year in the Capitol's Assembly Chambers, walked her down the aisle wearing a Darth Vader mask. "Lina," he said, quoting a famous "Star Wars" line, "I'm your father."

But on the night of his retirement celebration in April, Martin couldn't help but get a little emotional. He was presented with a Pendleton blanket containing the "Many Trails" insignia symbolizing the Stockbridge-Munsee tribe's arduous journey from the East Coast to Wisconsin. Buck's father, Edwin Martin, created the "Many Trails" design. "I was touched by the whole thing," says Martin. "Here they were honoring me, and it felt like my dad was there with me."

Martin has lived in Madison since the late 1970s with his wife Karen, a member of the Ho-Chunk Nation. They raised two daughters and now have three granddaughters. The history of the Stockbridge-Munsee tribe in Wisconsin dates to the first half of the 19th century, when they migrated —"or were pushed," Martin notes wryly—out of New York's Hudson Valley. Their route took them through Ohio and Indiana, and finally to Wisconsin—the eastern side of Lake Winnebago—where one of the tribe's members, Electa Quinney, became the state's first public school teacher.

Buck Martin was born in the hospital in Shawano in 1946 and grew up on the Stockbridge-Munsee reservation nearby. He was "Waldo" until he was 4, when on a family outing to pick berries, he fell asleep in the back of the station wagon. It was a time when kids could be left sleeping in the back of the car. When the family returned with their berries, a large buck had its nose nearly pressed to the back window of the station wagon. Sitting up inside, staring wide-eyed at the deer, was young Waldo. From that moment onward, no one called him anything but Buck. "I didn't know the story behind the name until 20 years later," Martin says. "My brother finally told me."

He attended the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh, the first of his family to go to college, and studied education. A bureaucratic mix-up regarding a student teaching assignment caused him to quit a semester before graduation. "You're old enough to make up your own mind," his mother said. She may have wondered about that after he joined the Army. Martin was sent to Kentucky for basic training but returned home almost immediately: Skin boils rendered him ineligible. The day he left, everyone on base was having their heads shaved, military-style. "But I'm going home," Martin said. "You're going home bald," was the order. He did.

Martin eventually graduated from UW-Oshkosh and started looking for teaching jobs. He landed in Wisconsin Dells, working as a coordinator between Native American families and public schools, with funding from the Johnson-O'Malley Act of 1934.

This was circa 1970, a challenging time. The Ho-Chunk were dissatisfied with the success rate of their students. There were disciplinary problems. The superintendent, meanwhile, was a rigid authoritarian. Martin instituted a tutoring program after school and was pleasantly surprised when the students embraced it. He invited the superintendent in to observe. The next morning, the superintendent called Martin in. "Did you see those kids?" "Weren't they great?" Martin said. "They were wearing jeans!"

Martin, dismayed that appearance would trump substance, got up and walked out. He landed at UW-Milwaukee, where he developed and implemented the Native American Studies Program. Students who interacted with Martin in Milwaukee recall his energy and humor, and how his letting them know he had their backs gave them confidence.

From 1975 to 1978, Martin served as education coordinator for the Great Lakes Inter-Tribal Council. Subsequently, he worked as an analyst for the Council on Criminal Justice, helped the State Patrol increase its diversity, advised Gov. Thompson, and at one point spent a year in Washington, D.C., as director of the White House Conference on Indian Education. Eventually, around 1997, Martin says, "With all of this experience, my tribe decided to hire me as a lobbyist."

Madison builder Mike Schmudlach has known Martin for four decades and says, "Everyone who knows Buck loves him." Schmudlach, a member of the Wisconsin Historical Society's Board of Curators and co-author of a book on the Ho-Chunk called People of the Big Voice, says Martin moves easily in both white and Native American worlds and has often served as the glue to bring various factions together.

Always, things are leavened with humor. "If he teases you, it means he likes you," Schmudlach said. He knew Martin liked him when Martin shook his head at Schmudlach's name and began calling him "Mud Duck."

It was from his lobbyist job that Martin retired in the spring. Of the issues he worked on, gaming ranks near the top. "It gave the tribes revenues and the ability to put it back into their communities. That's why you're seeing libraries and community centers."

Asked about ongoing issues, Martin mentions his efforts to get tribal IDs broadly accepted as legal identification. "I use mine," he says, "and challenge anyone not to accept it." Do they? Martin grins. "They don't have to, but they do."

FRUIT & VEGETABLE OF THE MONTH: GARLIC

March 2017

GARLIC HOW-TO

Garlics can be used in various dishes and formats including: pizza, pasta, dips, meat preparations, soups, and for general flavoring.

Using fresh garlic opposed to bottled/jarred garlic will impart more health benefits.

The more you "damage" the garlic through crushing, mincing, or slicing, the harsher the taste, therefore whole cloves are the milder tasting form.

HEATH BENEFITS OF GARLIC

Garlic is a plant from the onion family grown for cooking and health properties.

- Highly nutritious and low in calories: high in manganese, vitamin B6 and C, selenium, and fiber.
- Can combat sickness such as the common cold: garlic helps boost the immune system, reducing the severity of colds, and even the length of sickness
- Helps improve cholesterol levels and lower risk of heart disease: can lower total cholesterol and LDL levels, may also help to lower blood pressure levels
- Anti-bacterial and anti-parasitic: from treating bacterial and fungal infections to preventing cavity causing bacteria and tapeworm infections garlic is a well-rounded anti-bacterial food

To get rid of garlic breath nibble on parsley and drink milk. To get rid of garlic smell on your hands rub a lemon wedge, salt, baking soda, or even stainless steel and rinse well.

GARLIC & ROSEMARY HUMUS

Ingredients:

- (3) 15 oz cans garbonzo beans, drained and rinsed
- 7 cloves of garlic, peeled
- 1 cup olive oil
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon vinegar

Directions:

Blend all ingredients together in a blender or food processor until relatively smooth. Serve immediately and refrigerate any leftovers.

Fireplace and gathering area in the new Elder facility

From SMHWC Billing Department

As we transition to the new Intergy EHR system, if you are a patient that gets billed for any services at our facility you will be getting two statements each month.

One is from our old billing system, RPMS, and it will contain any old balances before 8/15/2016.

Dental services are also still being billed through our old system. So, if you go to the dentist you will get a statement out of our OLD billing system.

We hope to interface dental into our new EHR system soon to have all balances on one statement.

The other statement will come from our new EHR system, Intergy. This will be for any charges after 8/15/2016.

You could possibly be getting two statement each month. Also, our policy is to send a delinquent notice after a balance is over 60 days past due. If you get this notice on your statement it means that we have not received a payment from you for a service, you received more than 60 days ago.

Also, keep in mind that timing plays a big factor in the whole billing process. You could get a statement today, not pay it for a few weeks and by the time you do, a new statement is posted.

If you pay right before the new statement is posted, the payment you just made would not have been applied, and so the next statement you get will still have that old balance on it.

Payments made at the front desk or through the mail take at least a few days to be processed through our system.

Also, if you have charges out to insurance, your copays can be added anytime within the month to impact your statement balance. We process insurance payments daily, with any balance due from patient moved to patient due.

Thanks for being patient as we move to our new system!

Department of Health Services Report Highlights Opioid Overdose and Death Rates in Wisconsin

The rate of opioid overdose deaths in Wisconsin has nearly doubled over the last decade, according to a new Department of Health Services (DHS) report, "Select Opioid-Related Morbidity and Mortality Data for Wisconsin."

The report provides statewide and county-level data on opioid-related deaths and hospital visits; neonatal abstinence syndrome (NAS), in which an infant is born with withdrawal symptoms from substances taken by the mother; and data on ambulance runs in which naloxone, a medication used to reverse opioid overdose, was administered.

"The misuse of opioids in Wisconsin is a critical public health issue, and this report offers key data to inform our work with local health departments, organizations, and coalitions to reduce opioid misuse, overdose and other related health problems," said State Health Officer Karen McKeown.

The report includes these data highlights:

- The rate of opioid overdose deaths increased from 5.9 deaths/100,000 residents in 2006 to 10.7 deaths/100,000 in 2015.
- Rates of drug overdose deaths involving opioids were higher among counties in the southeastern region of the state, and higher among men compared with women.
- For men, drug overdose deaths involving opioids were highest among young adults aged 25-34, and among women aged 35-54.

- Hospital visits involving opioid acute poisoning (including overdose) increased from 25.3 to 52.0 per 100,000 between 2006 and 2014.
- The rate of hospital visits involving heroin increased from 2.6 in 2006 to 17.4 in 2014. For men and women, rates were highest among adults aged 20-24.
- The rate of ambulance EMS runs in which naloxone was administered rose from 51.2 to 67 per 100,000 from 2011 to 2015.
- The rate of NAS increased from 2.0 to 8.7 per 1,000 live births from 2006 to 2014, a rate increase of 335 percent.

In 2016, DHS issued a Public Health Advisory due to the opioid epidemic. This year, Governor Scott Walker called for a special session of the Legislature to consider recommendations presented by the Governor's Task Force on Opioid Abuse. New Legislative proposals will build on efforts already underway thanks to the H.O.P.E. (link is external) (Heroin, Opioid Prevention and Education) agenda, which includes 17 bills aimed at prevention and treatment of opioid addiction and overdose.

Wisconsin Submits Grant Application to Fight Opioid Epidemic

Funds to help build on prevention, treatment, and recovery efforts

Wisconsin's Department of Health Services (DHS) has submitted an application for up to $15.7 million in federal funding to boost the state's response to the growing misuse and abuse of opioids.

"This is an important step forward in our efforts to protect and promote the health and safety of state residents," said Governor Scott Walker. "The services and supports funded by this grant will bring hope and healing to individuals impacted by this public health crisis, their families, and their communities."

Governor Walker issued Executive Order #229 (link is external) on January 5, 2017, directing DHS to apply for the grant funds by February 17, 2017. The application was submitted February 16, 2017, to the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA).

DHS will use the funds to support the recommendations made in a report (link is external) issued last month by the co-chairs of Governor's Task Force on Opioid Abuse (link is external). State health officials will complete a statewide needs assessment, and then target their work in the areas with the highest need of services.

Pending approval from SAMHSA, this effort will:

- Support community coalitions focused on reducing the nonmedical use of opioids among people age 12 to 25.
- Establish a hotline to provide information on treatment services and recovery supports.
- Expand access to treatment for uninsured and underinsured individuals.
- Establish new opioid-specific treatment programs to reduce the distance people have to travel for these services.
- Establish a network of individuals in long-term recovery from the misuse and abuse of opioids trained to coach people through the treatment and recovery process.
- Develop training for professionals on proven intervention and treatment strategies for opioid misuse and abuse.

The funding is available under the 21st Century Cures Act. The amount of the grant is based on the unmet need for opioid-related treatment and the number of opioid-related deaths in the state. Wisconsin is eligible to receive up to $7,636,938 each year for the next two years.
