Supreme Court Strikes Down Affirmative Action
By Thomas Kazik – Mohican News Reporter
The American Indian College Fund is disheartened and concerned that the U.S. Supreme Court’s 6-3 majority opinion ruling in Students for Fair Admissions, Inc. v. President and Fellows of Harvard College will impinge on the equitable access to an affordable higher education for American Indian and Alaska Natives and other diverse student groups. They refuse to let this decision reverse decades of progress in educational achievement which has benefitted talented and accomplished Native students and other diverse students with the opportunity for affordable higher education, along with their families, and their communities.

Jolene Bowman, Ph.D., Director of Stockbridge-Munsee Education and Career Services, said, “In equality, everyone receives the same measure, while in equity, everyone receives what they personally need to be equal, which may result in a more or less than measure. For example, in equality everyone has the same measure, while in equity, everyone receives what they personally need to be equal, which may result in a more or less than measure.”

By John Quinney (Mahican, 1854)
It may appear to those whom I have the honor to address a singular taste for me, an Indian, to take an interest in the triumphal days of a people who occupy, by conquest or have usurped, the possessions of my fathers and have laid and carefully preserved a train of terrible miseries to end when my race ceased to exist. But thanks to the fortunate circumstances of my life I have been taught in the schools and been able to.

Letter from the Editor

Where I have been (XXX)

June 27, 2023 marked a very important day in my life. June 27, 1993 was the first day that I stopped drinking; and now 30 years later I stand here, still sober. I say stand because I know if I did not stop drinking I would not be standing. I would be lying six feet underground.

Reaching this milestone, I feel like it’s time that I gave back. If someone needs an ear, I will listen. I will not buy a drunk a drink, but I will listen. I have had an occasional battle with the idea of drinking over the years. By the time I get through what I would be giving up to drink again, the thought goes away. The only advice I have: do not drink today, do not pick up the bottle or glass! The problems still exist, but they are more manageable sober than drunk.

I always have a laugh for anyone who will listen and today that is you: when I had reached 10 years of being sober I thought I would mark the date with a ten-year coin from Alcohols Anonymous (A.A.) I asked my dear friend Aught Coyhis to get me a coin when he went to his next A.A. meeting to represent those 10 years of sobriety.

Aught came the next day and gave me a coin. I put it in my pocket and went home and put it in my drawer where it sat for a couple weeks. I decided that I needed to explain it to my children because it meant a lot to me to be sober this long in my life. I got the coin out and started telling them about it. I talked about what it meant for me on my journey on the road of sobriety. As I was talking to them, I flipped the coin over and looked at the Roman numeral in the center point. Much to my surprise it was not an X but an L. Aught Coyhis had given me his 50-year coin.

The next time I saw him, I told him, “You old buzzard! Now you jinxed me because now I have to stay sober for 50 years in order to honor this coin you have given me”. I was actually moved to tears but we interacted with each other like that.

Well, I’m 60% along the way to making it to 50 years of sobriety. I have often wondered what the good Lord has in store for me, with all of the times He could have taken me home. And now I hope that I have another 20 years to live long enough to honor the honor that Aught gave to me when he gave me this coin.

Respectfully and sincerely,
Jeff Vele

She is further survived by her numerous nieces, nephews, other relatives, and friends, including dear friend, Irene “Skeezix” Dickenson. She is preceded in death by her husband Peter; her parents Walter and Adelaide (Martin) Jacobs. A funeral service for Rena was held on June 30, 2023 at St. Anthony Catholic Church in Neopit with Fr. Hanz Christian officiating. Visitation was held at Swedberg Funeral Home in Shawano and again at the church on Friday until the time of service. The family would like to extend a special thank you to Brian for being a wonderful caregiver for many years.

Avoiding a Hernia

“Taking care of your body and being aware of your daily movements can go a long way in reducing your risk of a hernia.”

UPPER PENINSULA, Mich. – If you’ve ever had a hernia, you know you don’t ever want one again. Fortunately, only a small percentage of people who have had a hernia once will have a recurrence, reports the American College of Surgeons (ACS).

Some activities can put increased strain on your abdominal wall and may lead to a hernia. According to the ACS, National Institute of Diabetes and Kidney Diseases read your histories and accounts of Europeans, yourselves and the Red Man; which instruct me that while your rejoicings today are commemorative of the free birth of this giant nation, they simply convey to my mind the recollection of a transfer of the miserable weakness and dependence, of my race from one great power to another. My friends, I am getting old and have witnessed for many years your increase in wealth and power while the steady consuming decline of my tribe admonishes me that their extinction is inevitable. They know it themselves and the reflection teaches them humility and resignation, directing their attention to the existence of those happy hunting grounds which the Great Father has prepared for all his red children.

In this spirit, my friends, as a Muh-he-con-new, and now standing upon the soil which once was and now ought to be the property of this tribe, I have thought for once and certainly the last time I would shake you by the hand and ask you to listen for a little while to what I have to say. About the year 1645, when King Ben the last of the hereditary chiefs of the Muh-he-con-new nation was in his prime, grand council was convened of the Muh-he-con-new tribe for the purpose of conveying from the old to the young men a knowledge of the past. Councils for this object especially had been held. Here for the space of two moons, the stores of memory were dispensed; corrections and comparisons made and the results committed to faithful breasts to be transmitted again to succeeding posterity.

Many years after, another and last council of this kind was held; and the traditions reduced to writing, by two of our young men who had been taught to read and write in the school of the Rev. John Sargent of Stockbridge, Mass. They were obtained in some way by a white man for publication, who soon after dying, all trace of them became lost. The traditions of the tribe, however, have mainly been preserved, of which I give you substantially, the following: A great people from the northwest crossed over the salt water, and after long and weary pilgrimage, planting many colonies on their track, took possession of and built their fires upon the Atlantic coast, extending from the Delaware on the south to the Penobscott on the north. They became in process of time different tribes and interests; all, however, speaking one common dialect.

This great Confederacy, Pequots, Penobscot, and many others (Delawares, Mohegans, Manses, Narragansetts) held its councilfires once a year to deliberate on the general welfare. Patriarchal delegates from each tribe attended, assisted by the priests and the wise men, who communicated the will and invoked the blessing of the Great and Good Spirit. The policies and decisions of this council were everywhere respected, and inviolably observed. Thus contentment smiled upon their existence and they were happy. Their religion communicated by priest and prophet, was simple and true. The manner of worship is imperfectly transmitted; but their reverence for a Great Spirit, the observance of feasts each year, the offering of beasts in thanksgiving and atonement is clearly expressed. They believed the soul to be immortal—in the existence of a happy land beyond the view, inhabited by those whose lives had been blameless. While for the wicked had been reserved a region of misery covered with thorns and thistles, where comfort and pleasure were unknown. Time was divided into years and seasons; twelve moons for a year, a number of years by so many winters. The tribe to which your speaker belongs and of which there were many bands, occupied and possessed the country from the seashore at Manhattan to Lake Champlain. Having found the ebb and flow of the tide, they said: “This is Muh-he-con-new,” “Like our waters which are never still.” From this expression and by this name they were afterwards known, until the removal to Stockbridge in the year 1630.

Housatonic River Indians, Mohegans, Mannattans, were all names of bands in different localities, but bound together as one family by blood and descent. At a remote period, before the advent of the European their wise men foretold the coming of a strange race from the sunrise, as numerous as the leaves upon the trees, who would eventually crowd them from their fair land possessions. But apprehension was mitigated by the knowledge and belief at that time entertained, that they originally were not there, and after a period of years they would return to the west from which they had come. And they moreover said all Red Men are sprung from a common ancestor, made by the Great Spirit from red clay, who will unite their strength to avert a common calamity. This tradition is confirmed by the common belief, which prevails in our day with all the Indian tribes; for they recognize one another by their color, as brothers and acknowledge one Great Creator.

Two hundred and fifty winters ago, this prophecy was verified and the Muh-he-con-new for the first time beheld the paleface. Their number was small, but their canoes were big. In the select and exclusive circles of your rich men of the present day I should encounter the gaze of curiosity, but not such as overwhelmed the senses of the Aborigines, my ancestors. Our visitors were white and must be sick. They asked for rest and kindness; we gave them both. They were strangers, and we took them in; naked and we clothed them.

The first impression of astonishment and pity was succeeded by awe and admiration of superior intelligence and address. A passion for information and improvement possessed the Indians. A residence was given—territory offered—and covenants of friendship exchanged. Your written accounts of events at this period are familiar to you, my friends. Your children read them every day in their school books; but they do not read—no mind at this time can conceive, and no pen record, the terrible story of recompense for kindness, which for two hundred years has been paid the simple, guileless Muh-he-con-new.

I have seen much myself—1 have been connected with more—and I tell you I know all. The tradition of the wise men is figuratively true that our home at last will be found in the west; for another tradition informs us that far beyond the setting sun your history will be written.

sun, upon the smiling happy lands, we shall be gathered with our fathers, and be at rest. Promises and professions were freely given and ruthlessly and intentionally broken. To kindle your fires was sought as a privilege; and yet at that moment you were transmitting to your kings intelligence of our possessions, “by right of discovery,” and demanding assistance to assert your hold.

Where are the 25,000 in number, and the 4,000 warriors, who constituted the power and population of the great Muh-he-con’new nation in 1604? They have been victims to vice and disease, which the white men imported. Smallpox, measles and firewater have done the work of annihilation. Divisions and feuds were insidiously promoted between the several bands. They were induced to thin each others ranks without just cause; and subsequently were defeated and disorganized in detail.

It is curious, the history of my tribe, in its decline, in the last two centuries and a half. Nothing that deserved the name of purchase was made. From various causes, they were induced to abandon their territory at intervals and retire farther inland. Deeds were given indifferently to the government by individuals, for which little or no compensation was paid.

The Indians were informed, in many instances, that they were selling one piece of land when they were conveying another and much larger limits. Should a particular band, for purposes of hunting or fishing, for a time leave its usual place of residence, the land was said to be abandoned, and the Indian claim extinguished. To legalise and confirm titles thus acquired, laws and edicts were subsequently passed, and these laws were said then to be, and are now called, justice. Oh, what mockery to confound justice with law! Will you look steadily at the intrigues, bargains, corruptions and log rollings of your present legislatures, and see any trace of justice? And by what test shall be tried the acts of the colonial courts and councils?

Let it not surprise you, my friends, when I say that the spot upon which I stand has never been rightly purchased or obtained. And by justice, human and Divine, is the property of the remnant of the great people from whom I am descended. They left it in the tortures of starvation and to improve their miserable existence; but a cession was never made, and their title was never extinguished. The Indian is said to be the ward of the white man, and the negro his slave. Has it ever occurred to you, my friend, that while the negro is increasing and increased by every appliance, the Indian is left to rot and die before the inhumanities of this model republic? You have your tears and groans and mobs and riots for the individuals of the former, while your indifference of purpose and vacillation of policy is hurrying to extinction whole communities of the latter. What are the treaties of the general government? How often and when has its weighed faith been kept? Indian occupation is forever next year, or one removal follows another, or by the next commissioner, more wise than his predecessor, repurchased, and thus your sympathies and justice are evinced in speedily fulfilling the terrible destinies of our race.

My friends, your Holy Book, the Bible, teaches us that individual offenses are punished in an existence—when time shall be no more—and the annals of the earth are equally instructive that national wrongs are avenged, and national crimes atoned for in this world to which alone the conformation of existence adapts them. These events are above our comprehension, and for a wise purpose; for myself and for my tribe I ask for justice—I believe it will sooner or later occur, and may the Great Spirit enable me to die in hope.

(NIDDK), National Library of Medicine (NLM) and National Institutes of Health (NIH), here are the risk factors and ways to reduce them:

- Lifting heavy objects
  - Lift properly by getting close to the object you intend to lift, bend at your knees (not waist) and use your leg muscles to lift.

- Lack of muscle strength
  - Exercise regularly to strengthen your abdominal muscles.

- Chronic constipation
  - Eat high-fiber foods, such as whole grains, bran, and raw fruits and veggies to help minimize constipation.

- Significant weight gain or obesity
  - Being overweight puts extra pressure on your abdomen, increasing your risk of developing a hernia.

- Sitting or standing for long periods
  - Take breaks and stretch regularly to avoid putting too much pressure on your abdomen.

- Chronic coughing or sneezing
  - Talk to your provider if either persists.

- Smoking
  - Nicotine weakens the abdominal wall and increases the risk of developing a hernia. Quit smoking as quickly as possible.

- Pregnancy
  - As the belly grows, the pressure on the abdominal wall increases. Watch out for a soft lump around the belly button or groin area.

Most people will need surgery to repair a hernia. The type of procedure will be determined by a surgeon and depend on factors such as the size of the hernia, the patient’s age, and health and medical history.

In open hernia repair, an incision is made near the site and the hernia is repaired with mesh or by suturing the muscle closed. In laparoscopic hernia repair, mesh or sutures are inserted through instruments placed into small incisions in the abdomen.

Watchful waiting, or safely delaying surgery, may be an option for people who are not uncomfortable. If you feel pain or discomfort in your abdomen, take it seriously and see your health care provider. They will be able to determine the best treatment option for you.

“Don’t wait to see your health care provider about a hernia and assume it will be okay,” urges Dr. Laszko. “It’s such a simple surgery to get it fixed, and since the potential outcomes if you don’t have it fixed are so dangerous, it’s really worth talking to your provider and seeing if you’re a good candidate for surgery.”
The PACT Act and your VA benefits

The PACT Act is a new law that expands VA health care and benefits for Veterans exposed to burn pits and other toxic substances. This law helps us provide generations of Veterans—and their survivors—with the care and benefits they’ve earned and deserve.

This page will help answer your questions about what the PACT Act means for you or your loved ones. You can also call us at 800-698-2411 (TTY: 711). And you can file a claim for PACT Act-related disability compensation or apply for VA health care now.

File a disability claim online Apply for VA health care

What’s the PACT Act and how will it affect my VA benefits and care?

What does it mean to have a presumptive condition for toxic exposure? Gulf War era and post-9/11 Veteran eligibility

What is presumptive exposure?

What does it mean to have a presumptive condition for toxic exposure? To get a VA disability rating, your disability must connect to your military service. For many health conditions, you need to prove that your service caused your condition. But for some conditions, we automatically assume (or “presume”) that your service caused your condition. We call these “presumptive conditions.”

We consider a condition presumptive when it’s established by law or regulation. If you have a presumptive condition, you don’t need to prove that your service caused the condition. You only need to meet the service requirements for the presumption. Gulf War era and post-9/11 Veteran eligibility

What burn pit and other toxic exposure conditions are now presumptive?

We’ve added more than 20 burn pit and other toxic exposure presumptive conditions based on the PACT Act. This change expands benefits for Gulf War era and post-9/11 Veterans. These cancers are now presumptive:

These illnesses are now presumptive: Asthma that was diagnosed after service, Chronic bronchitis, Chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), Chronic rhinitis, Chronic sinusitis, Constrictive bronchiolitis or obliterative bronchiolitis, Emphysema, Granulomatous disease, Interstitial lung disease (ILD), Pleuritis, Pulmonary fibrosis, Sarcoidosis.

How do I know if I have a presumptive exposure to burn pits?

If you served in any of these locations and time periods, we’ve determined that you had exposure to burn pits or other toxins. We call this having a presumptive exposure.

On or after September 11, 2001, in any of these locations: Afghanistan, Djibouti, Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Syria, Uzbekistan, Yemen

Am I eligible for free VA health care as a post-9/11 combat Veteran?

We’re extending and expanding VA health care eligibility based on the PACT Act. We encourage you to apply, no matter your separation date. Your eligibility depends on your service history and other factors.

If you meet the requirements listed here, you can get free VA health care for any condition related to your service for up to 10 years from the date of your most recent discharge or separation. You can also enroll at any time during this period and get any care you need, but you may owe a copay for some care.

At least one of these must be true of your active-duty service: You served in a theater of combat operations during a period of war after the Persian Gulf War, or You served in combat against a hostile force during a period of hostilities after November 11, 1998

And both of these must be true for you:

You were discharged or released between September 11, 2001, and October 1, 2013, and You haven’t enrolled in VA health care before

We encourage you to apply during this 1-year period so we can provide you with any care you may need now or in the future. Enrollment is free.

What if I was discharged or released before October 1, 2013?

If you meet the requirements listed here, you can receive care and enroll during a special enrollment period between October 1, 2022, and October 1, 2023.

At least one of these must be true of your active-duty service: You served in a theater of combat operations during a period of war after the Persian Gulf War, or You served in combat against a hostile force during a period of hostilities after November 11, 1998.

We encourage you to enroll now so we can provide any care you may need now or in the future. Enrollment is free.

Action cont from pg One: same opportunity to play ball, yet in equity it takes leveling the playing field so all have the same skill set to play ball.

The College Fund stands with Justice Sonia Sotomayor, who dissented, when she said the Court “stands in the way and rolls back decades of precedent and momentous progress. It holds that race can no longer be used in a limited way in college admissions to achieve such critical benefits. In so holding, the court cements a superficial rule of colorblindness as a constitutional principle in an endemically segregated society where race has always mattered and continued to matter.”

Sotomayor continued that the majority opinion is not grounded in law or in fact. President Joe Biden concurred in his statement to the nation, saying, “The court has effectively ended affirmative action in college admissions and I strongly, strongly disagree with the court's decision,” adding, “the court has once again walked away from decades of [legal] precedent.”

With regard to the facts of our lives lived in the real world that show us that, in fact, we do not live in a colorblind world: Our histories and cultures are still being removed from curricula across the country. Students continue to face prohibitions from wearing regalia at graduation ceremonies. Native students are frequently excluded from accessing campus resources and rarely see themselves represented on college campuses.

Today's U.S. Census data illustrates the impact of inequity: AIAN people have the lowest higher education attainment rates in the United States (15.0% of AI/ANs 25 years and over have a bachelor’s degree or higher, compared to 32.1% of the overall population).

As Justice Sotomayor also said, “Equal educational opportunity is a prerequisite to achieving racial equality in our nation.” Education, as we say at the American Indian College Fund, was—and still is—the answer—to empowering people to envision and create a future of their choosing. Those benefits, not incidentally, are to the benefit of the entire country—making it more competitive, sustainable, and secure.

The need for continued access to higher education for Native peoples has not been erased despite this ruling. Despite the great progress American Indians and Alaska Natives (AIAN) people made in earning a higher education thanks to the tribal college movement and affirmative action, education inequality in Indian Country is disproportionate. Although Native peoples adhere to the legal distinction of American Indians as being citizens of sovereign nations rather than a racial group, we acknowledge there is a duality in how American Indians in the United States are classified in practice, as both sovereign peoples and as a racial group.

It is for this reason we are aggrieved by the Supreme Court's decision, while remaining unequivocally in favor of higher education policies and practices that equalize pathways to a higher education for Indigenous peoples (Taken from American Indian College Fund release).
